Learning in Early Childhood II (EDUC 5461)

Critical analysis of diverse approaches to early childhood curriculum and of implications for curricular commonplaces in the Ontario context. A complement to core curricular instruction with emphasis on advanced curriculum development, implementation, and assessment to enhance children’s meaning making. 3 hours per week, full year, .5 credit.

Curriculum, Pedagogy, and Learning in Early Childhood II is designed to deepen understandings of early childhood education, curriculum, and pedagogical practices by focusing on the role of the teacher in the Ontario early childhood education classroom. The course focuses on new possibilities and new framings of negotiated curriculum, inquiry-based learning and pedagogical documentation, engaging the complex intersections of curriculum theory and pedagogical practice.

Underpinning this course is a commitment to challenging Canada’s colonial legacies and addressing social and environmental justice and diversity in the context of early education.

Teacher candidates engage in a series of curriculum inquiries that tie to topics such as indigeneity, decolonization, and their contributions to environmental challenges.

Students will engage deeply with the Ontario Kindergarten Program, How Does Learning Happen: Ontario’s Pedagogy for the Early Years, as well as the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. The Ontario Ministry of Education has recently released the Kindergarten Program (2016) which, together with How does Learning Happen? Ontario Pedagogy for the Early Years (2014), shifts "from a traditional pedagogy to one centred on the child". Such shifts involve rethinking learning as a process that takes place through relationships, teaching as a mode of encountering questions and engaging in complicated conversations, and assessment as a process to make children's thinking and learning visible.

The course is designed to provide you with a complex and critical understanding of these ideas. Drawing on post-foundational perspectives, we will consider the social political, cultural, and environmental implications of early childhood curricula for young children, teachers, educators, and communities. By creatively engaging in curricula inquiries, we will not only learn how to enact a pedagogy centered on the child, but also how we can create new possibilities for curriculum through the thoughtful interweaving of theory and practice.

Discussions and group work require deep engagement with complex ideas outlined in assigned readings.

I have carefully selected the weekly readings to provoke your thinking. I hope that these articles will contribute to your already wide early childhood education repertoire.

Engagement with these readings is necessary to successfully deepen the inquiry assignments.

How much to read? Read to be prepared to engage in 'informed' discussions. Read as much as you think you need to in order to write interesting and informed documentation. Read to extend your inquiry, especially when you feel your inquiry is 'stuck'. Read as much as you need to in order to respectfully challenge and extend your colleagues' thinking during inquiry discussions. Read to be able to link theory and practice. Please take the time that we are all dedicating to this class seriously. More importantly, have fun. Experiment. Be curious. Think outside the box!

Course Texts:

2. Additional weekly readings (can be found through Western Libraries and/or posted on OWL)

3. Government of Ontario Curricular Documents and supporting material (Available online)

The course textbook can be found through Western Libraries and/or purchased online. Teacher candidates are encouraged to bring a laptop/tablet, and a camera to each class to use in their collaborative inquiry projects.

This course meets the following Course Outcomes:

ECE Strands: This course as a whole, including its topics, readings, classroom pedagogies and conversations intra-relates with the other components of the Bachelor of Education program (e.g., depth and breadth of education coursework and practica) to promote the competencies checked below within teacher candidates' process of becoming a teacher. The Assessment Strategies of the course are also designed to capture teacher candidates' acquisition of these competencies as they develop over the time of the course and at its closure. Assessments are also designed to allow for ongoing feedback to candidates on their acquisition of the competencies and to provide a rationale for evaluation for accountability purposes.

The course is organized to encompass four related content strands, which are informed by guiding questions. Each week, teacher candidates examine aspects of these strands and articulate the connections between them in both the discussion and studio portions. By engaging with these strands, students will be able to understand the complexities of early childhood education curriculum.

Strand 1: Critical approaches to early childhood curriculum and pedagogy

Strand 2: Enhancing children’s meaning making and expressive languages through negotiated curriculum and inquiry-based learning

Strand 3: Pedagogical documentation for creative and investigative curriculum development, and assessment

Strand 4: Connections to curricular commonplaces in the Ontario context
How to Protect Your Professional Integrity:

The Bachelor of Education is an intense and demanding program of professional preparation. Teacher Candidates are expected to demonstrate high levels of academic commitment and professional integrity that align with both Western University's Academic Rights and Responsibilities and the Professional Standards and Ethical Standards set by the Ontario College of Teachers. These expectations govern your time in class, in your Practicum, in your Alternative Field Experiences, and include the appropriate use of technology and social media.

The Teacher Education Office will only recommend teacher candidates for Ontario College of Teachers certification when candidates have demonstrated the knowledge of, and adherence to, the faculty polices throughout the two-year program.

To review the policies and practices that govern the Teacher Education program, including attendance, plagiarism, progression requirements, safe campus and more, visit: edu.uwo.ca/CSW/my-program/BEd/policies.html

Faculty of Education Pass/Fail Policy:

All courses and assignments in the Bachelor of Education are assessed as Pass/Fail.

Instructors will make the Success Criteria of the assignments clear, and refinements of the criteria may take place in class as a means of co-constructing details of the assignments in the first two weeks of a course. This will allow for differentiation of process, product and timeline depending upon student needs.

Success Criteria will

- Articulate what needs to occur to demonstrate learning outcomes for a course/assignment;
- Inform the instructional process so that teaching can be adapted to ensure students continue to remain on track to meet the criteria as needed and appropriate.
- Align with the assignments created to provide opportunities for students to demonstrate the knowledge, skills and abilities they are working toward;
- Establish clear descriptive language that allows Teacher Candidates to identify, clarify and apply the criteria to their work and to their engagement in peer feedback;
- Focus the feedback on progress toward meeting the overall and specific tasks/assignment goals for the course.
Participation:

Participation is essential to success in the Teacher Education program. As a professional school, you need to treat coming to class as showing up for work in the profession. If you are not in class, you cannot participate. Actively participating in discussions, peer reviews/feedback, group work and activities is integral to the development of your own learning and to the learning within your classroom community.

Given the varied experiences of Teacher Candidates in the program, you may engage with ideas/concepts or skills that are familiar or unfamiliar to you.

A Professional Teacher Candidate is one who:

- Arrives in class (virtual or online) on time, and prepared. This includes completing any readings, viewing assignments or tasks in advance of class as requested.
- Listens to others and contributes thoughtfully to discussions;
- Models respectful dialogue and openness to learn, monitors, self-assesses and reformulates one’s prior beliefs and understandings in light of new information;
- Monitors and addresses their wellness, practices self-care, and seeks appropriate support when necessary.
